Responsible Antibiotic Use

As of Q1 2020, our US turkey supply chain transitioned to a limited antibiotic use program which aligns our sourcing practices to World Health Organization (WHO) recommendations to restrict the use of antibiotics that are important to human medicine. In addition, in line with the WHO, our sandwiches, wraps and salads in the US are served only with chicken raised without antibiotics important to human health. The US supply of pork and beef products from animals raised without antibiotics important to human medicine is limited, and we expect our transition to be completed by 2025.
